

WikiVet Newsletter

Dear reader,

Welcome to the thirteenth edition of the WikiVet newsletter

In this edition we launch an exciting photo competition, catch up with our friends at the IVSA and find out about our next online social session.

WikiVet News

We're running our first photo competition - the theme is: Where's WikiVet?

To be in with a chance of winning, you should take a picture containing the 'Where's WikiVet' logo and show us where you are... this could be at your Vet school, in front of a well-known landmark... the only real rule is no photo editing allowed!

Entries should be emailed to wikimaster@wikivet.net before Monday 16th April. Photos will then be posted into WikiVet's Facebook page, the picture with the most 'likes' will win a £50 Amazon voucher. We want to see entries from as many places around the world as possible, so get snapping! See more details on the Photo competition page.

WikiVet team in Paris

The WikiVet team visited the Ecole Nationale Vétérinaire d'Alfort to meet Professor Christophe Degueurce. Professor Degueurce is not only a senior member of academic staff but also the curator of the incredible Fragonard Museum.

Our visit was primarily to discuss the potential to collaborate with WikiVet's new Online Veterinary Anatomy Museum (OVAM) but we were also taken on a fascinating tour of the campus.

WikiVet Events

Americas, Africa and Europe online social session - 21st April

After the success of our first online session, we'll now be hosting these sessions once a month so the team can meet some of the users and the users can meet each other. These sessions will vary times so we can meet some more of our international audiences. The next session would probably be most suitable for North and South American, African and European audiences, although if anyone's a night-owl you can of course join us!

The next session is being held at 5pm in the UK, which is:

- 9am in Los Angeles and Vancouver,
- 10am in Calgary and Guatemala,
- 11am in Mexico City, Chicago and Lima,
- 12 midday in New York, Toronto, Havana and La Paz,
- 1pm in Buenos Aires and Nova Scotia,
- 4pm in Reykjavik and Casablanca,
- 5pm in the UK, Lagos and Algiers,
- 6pm in Rome, Johannesburg and Cairo

If you would like to join us then why not RSVP in our Facebook event, then join us in the NOVICE virtual classroom for the actual event on Saturday 21st April at 5pm UK time.

Who's involved in WikiVet

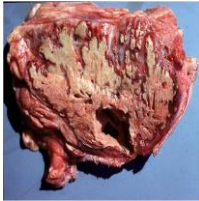

International Veterinary Students Association

The mission of the IVSA is to benefit the animals and people of the world by harnessing the potential and dedication of veterinary students to promote the international application of veterinary skills, education and knowledge.

This mission closely relates to WikiVet's own Mission and guiding principles, if you have a look in the IVSA's Spring newsletter 2012 (out soon!) you'll find an article about WikiVet. We look forward to working a lot more with the IVSA in the future.

How you can get involved

Pop-Quiz: What's your diagnosis?

This image is from a case of severe, acute, gangrenous mastitis in a sheep. What is the most likely cause?

This case has been provided on our WikiVet Pathology Facebook page where new cases are posted every week. Visit the page to see the options, then vote for the most likely cause.

Join our NOVICE groups, like our Facebook pages or follow us on Twitter

The WikiVet team are always keen to hear from you, and really want to know what you think of WikiVet. We want you to keep up to date with developments and have plenty of opportunities to get involved in discussions about WikiVet content, to find out more about how WikiVet works and to help shape the WikiVet of the future. Why not 'like' our main Facebook page or Pathology Facebook page, register for NOVICE or follow us on Twitter!
