

Spanish WikiVet development.

A translation pilot project by students

López Albors O.², Gaitskell-Phillips G.¹, Seva J.², Short N.¹

1. E-media Unit, Royal Veterinary College, University of London, UK

2. Anatomy and Comparative Pathology Dept, Veterinary Faculty, University of Murcia, Spain

<http://es.wikivet.net/>

Página Discusión

Página Principal

Fisiología Canina - WikiEstándares > Anatomía & Fisiología > Pág

Anatomía & Fisiología
Estándares

Aim of the project

Addition of content and promoting usage of the Spanish WikiVet site

Students

(n=15) Veterinary Faculty,
University of Murcia

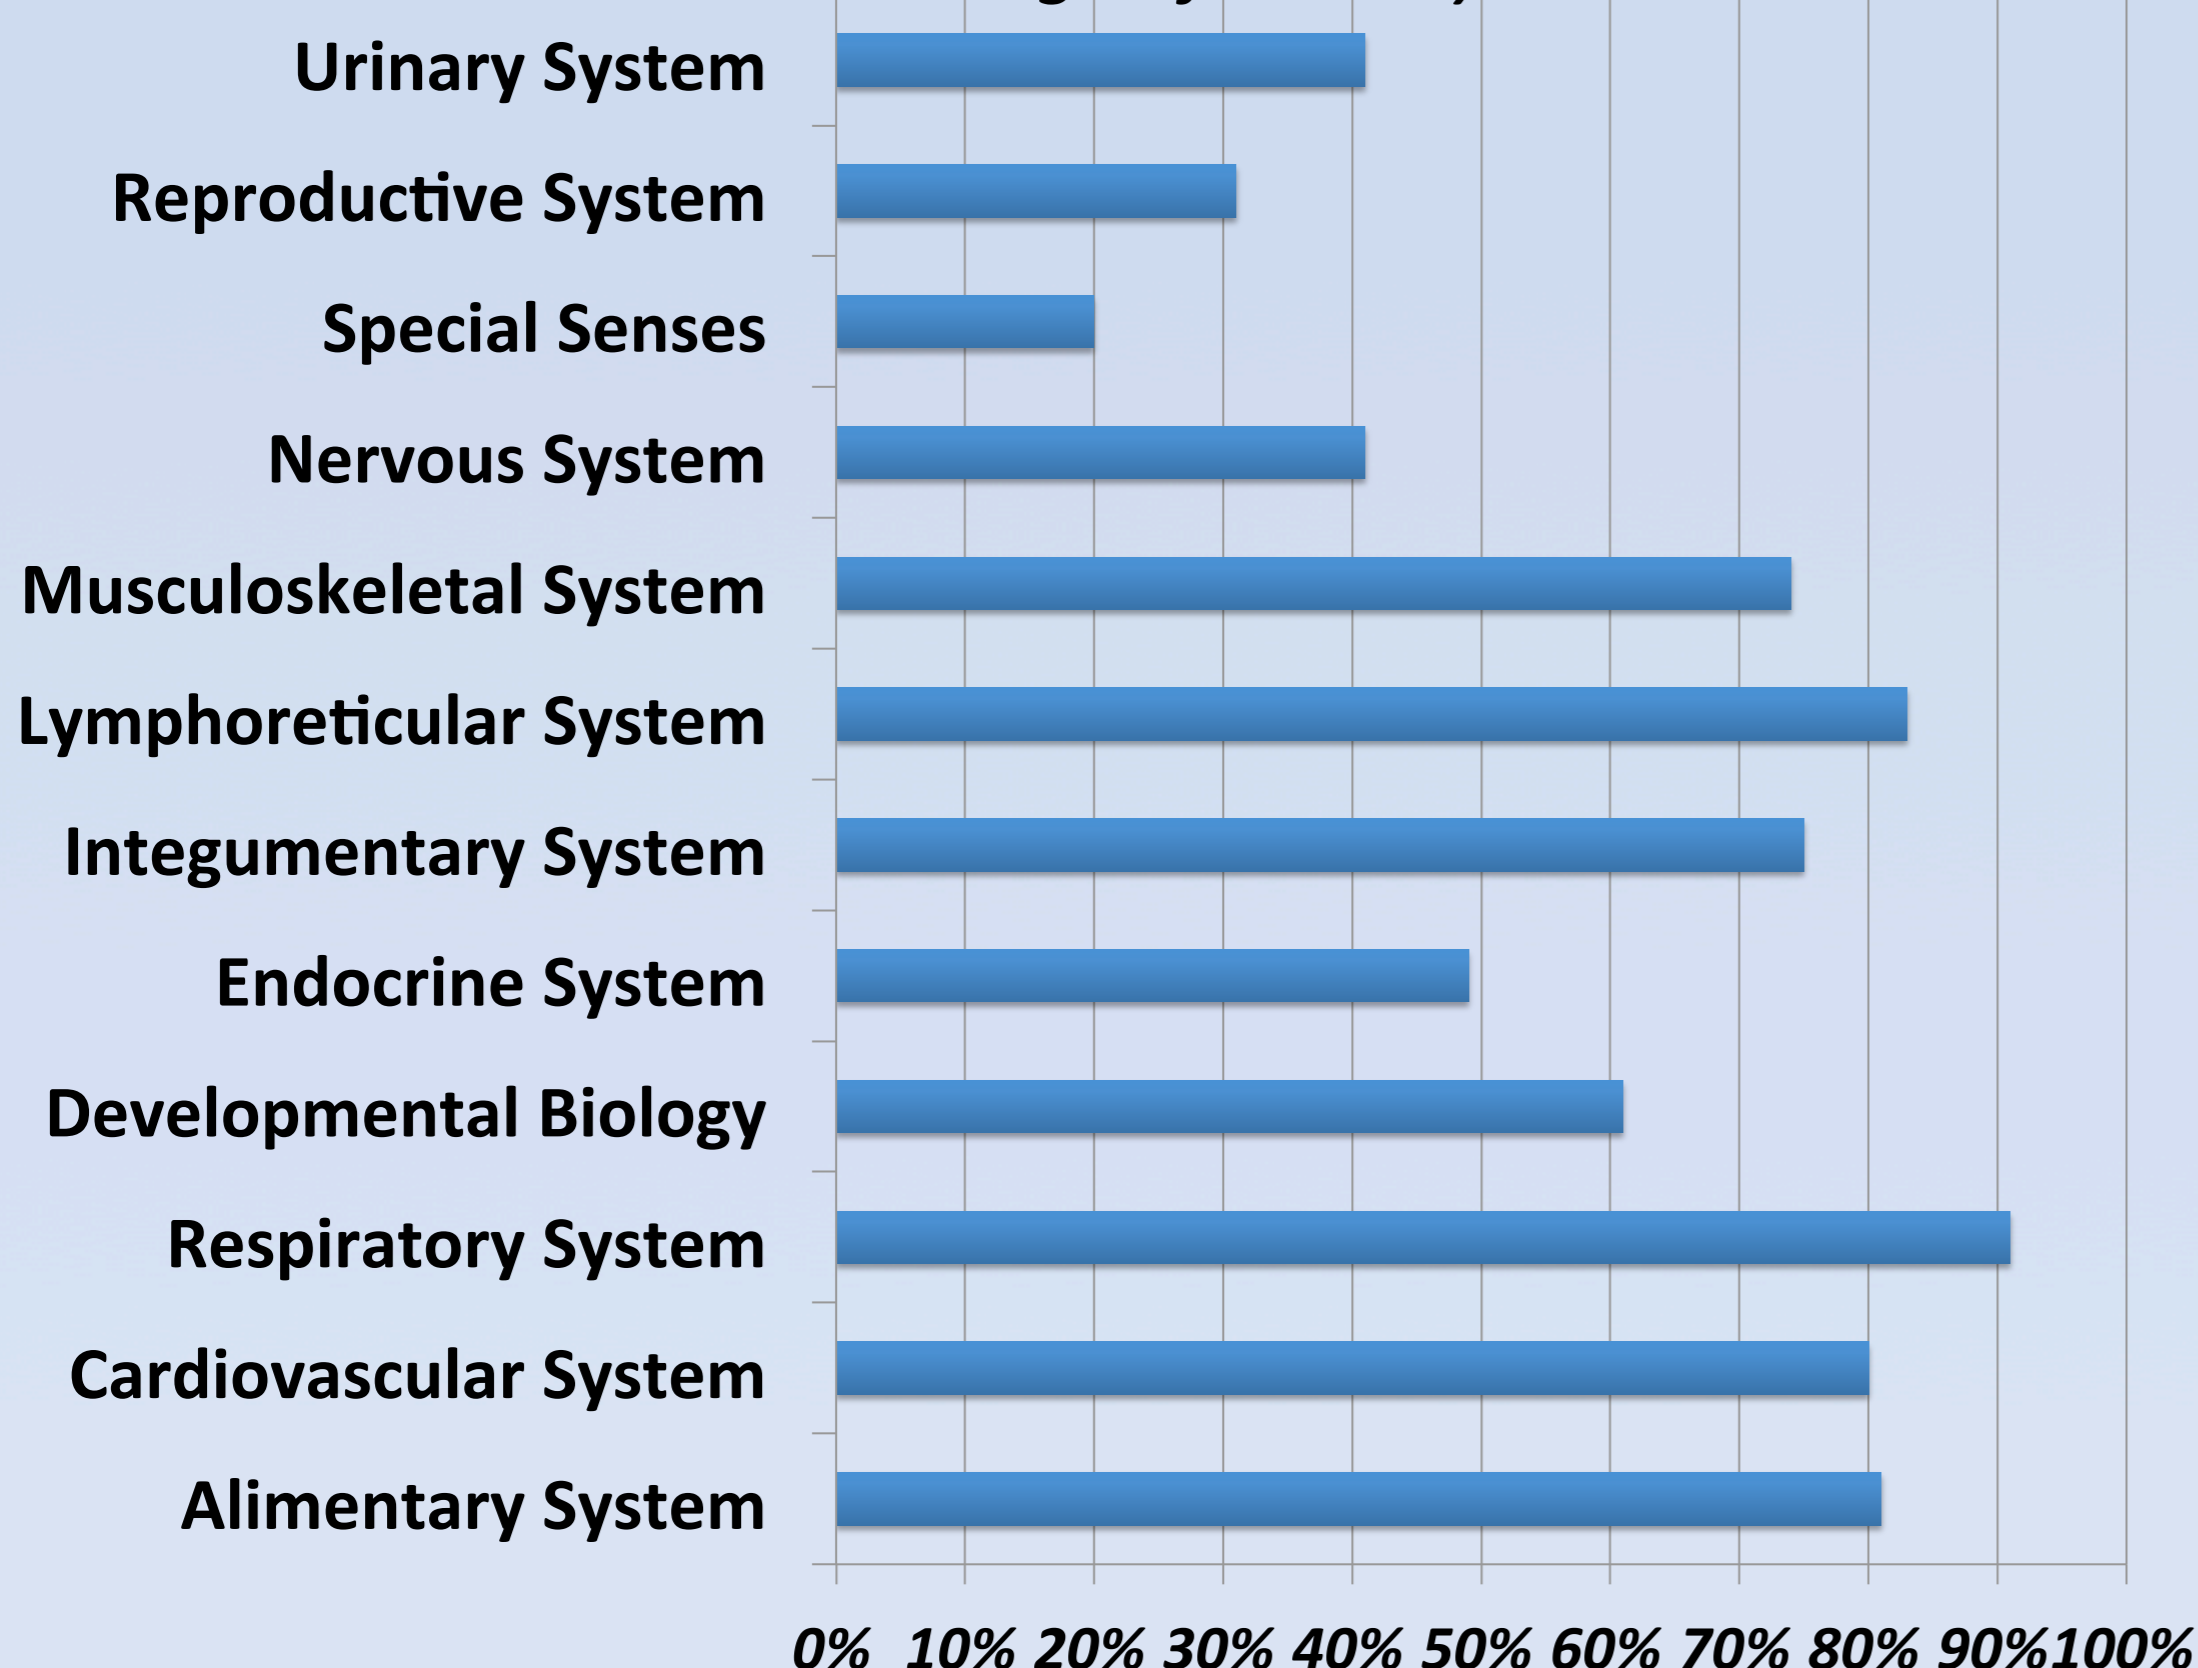

“Reward”

- Free Election Credit /10 hours
- Certificate

RESULTS

154 pages and 30 flashcards
3 students gave up

■ Percentage of Each System Translated

Student's Opinion (n=7)

Anonymous Survey (Likert scale 1-4)	Average
Project interest and value	3
Satisfaction level	2
Appropriate amount of work	2.43
Motivating factor for participation:
- English practice	4
- Revision	3.57
- Obtaining Free E. Credits	2.71
Total hours of work	24

CONCLUSIONS

1. An efficient project to boost development and diffusion of es.WikiVet
2. Exportable model of work for other faculties

2012-13 PROJECT

9 students involved

Goal:

to reach 100% translation of the “Anatomía y Fisiología” section.